Students gather in remembrance of Vietnam War

By CATHY PODWOJSKI
Government editor

Entering the Vietnam war is still one of the most disputed topics in the United States, today, but those disputing it probably the loudest, college students, are among those affected the least.

Eastern students had a chance to learn about the war and show interest in it at the Student Senate and University Board sponsored showing of the movie Hanoi-Hilton Wednesday night.

The movie, which tells the story of soldiers held prisoner at the end and after the war was over, was part of senate's POW/MIA activities during November to raise student awareness.

Nationally, as well as on Eastern's campus, November is dedicated to the memory of those people who are still unaccounted for from the Vietnam war.

As part of the POW/MIA activities, Senate also sold remembrance bracelets before and during the movie to raise money to buy a flag to be flown on campus during November and on holidays such as Memorial Day and Flag Day.

The flag, which will replace the one that was lost two years ago, bears the letters POW/MIA and the logo representing the groups who are trying to find answers to the whereabouts of those missing.

The bracelets sold for $6.50 each with $1 from each sold going toward paying for the flag. The flag will first be flown at the football game on Saturday for Parent's Weekend.

"I'm in the Air Force, but it is the kind of show all people should come see," Tanya Ashby, a junior communications major, said.

Ashby said she wasn't sure what the movie was about, but she had once seen a person with one of the bracelets on, and she felt it was a worthwhile thing to have. Ashby said she bought one of the bracelets for herself and several for friends of hers.

"I think it's important to show these people are still thought of, and they aren't forgotten," Ashby added.

Ravanh, a freshman pre-business major, had to leave his homeland of Laos because of the war in nearby Vietnam and came to see "what's really happening now."

"I want to see the differences between what I've learned in books and what really happened," Ravanh said.

David Dosier, a freshman computer management major, said he became interested in the bracelets through a cousin of his who had one, but he said he also has other reasons for his interest.

"I'm in the ROTC, now and I'm planning to make a career of the military," Dosier said. "I really want to know why they would keep them (Americans)."

Candidates to speak at forum

By CATHY PODWOJSKI
Government editor

Although candidates in the national election have been accused of avoiding the issues, students running for Student Senate will give the rest of the student body a chance to hear the issues they feel are important to Eastern at a candidates' forum Thursday night.

Elections committee co-chair Bill Golden said at the senate meeting Wednesday night the forum will be held at 7 p.m. in the Coleman Hall Auditorium free of charge to the public.

Each of the 32 candidates participating in the forum will have three minutes to speak and answer any questions the audience has to ask them. Candidates will speak in the order they appear on the ballot according to the district they are running for.

In other senate action, housing committee member Brian Moushon said the non-partisan booklet on Greek Court will be available to students on Friday.

Vice President Andrea Pyle said a "round table" of representatives from campus organizations will meet Wednesday at 6 p.m. to discuss current events with each group.

"We'll be discussing things that are happening with their organizations," Pyle said. "It's for communication."

Student Speaker Jane Clark said the report for Eastern President Stanley Rives on the the Undergraduate Report as prepared by senate member Diane DiGrazzia is ready to be sent.

Presidential candidates pick up pace

By the Associated Press

George Bush said Wednesday that voters should pick a president that reflects their hopes and dreams for America and proudly proclaimed, "I am that man," Michael Dukakis urged supporters to "keep pouring it on" in a drive for an Election Day upset.

Republican Bush and Democrat Dukakis made their rounds six days before the voting while all around them the pace of campaigning quickened.

Senate Republican leader Bob Dole was going to three states during the day in a bid to help endangered GOP candidates for congress. Sen. Edward Kennedy countered for the Democrats by campaigning in Minnesota, where Hubert Humphrey III is a Senate race underdog.

Officials in both houses agree Democrats are likely to retain control of both houses of Congress after next week's balloting, although Republicans harbor hopes of winning enough close senate seats to reduce the current 54-46 Democratic advantage.

President Reagan campaigned in Ohio, where he tried to turn Dukakis' "On Your Side" rally cry against the Democrats. "They're on your side when they want to get their hands on your wallets," he said.

John Howard in Owensboro, KY., set up a sort of drive through poll at his Crickets Classy Car Wash, and said the results were about even. Customers could drive into a bay named for the presidential candidate of their choosing.

"It's very scientific," he said. "The margin of error is 100 percent."

As usual, Dukakis' aides said their private polls were encouraging. As usual the political poll seemed to be pointing to a Republican victory next Tuesday. ABC said its latest Illinois survey was a dead heat, but Bush led in other surveys from Ohio, Arkansas and Connecticut.

Bush campaigned through Illinois and Michigan, two key Midwestern battlegrounds.

At the first stop, at Adlai Stevenson High School outside Chicago, he instructed an audience made up largely of students how to make an Election Day choice.

Misconceptions of women brought out in film, panelists discuss roles

By ANDREA PYLE
Staff Writer

A capacity crowd turned out Wednesday night in the University Ballroom to view and discuss the film, Still Killing Me Softly.

The film dealt with the effects advertising has on the way society portrays women. Jeane Kilbourne, Ed. D., was featuring in the film the numerous ads in American media that have an "unconscious" affect on the average viewer.

The crowd engaged in discussion bringing up many varying opinions under the control of a panel sponsored by the Women's Study Council. The panel was composed by Nancy Marlow of the management/marketing department, Susan Kauffman of the journalism department, and Eastern student Lisa Dempsey, WEIU anchorwoman.

All of the panelists described themselves as "feminists", but added that there are many different definitions of the word.

In addition to the panelists' discussion, members of the audience took an active role in this program. One member of the audience agreed with the film and explained how statistics prove that the chances of a female college graduate getting a job are less than that of a male high school graduate.

In the film, Kilbourne said that the "image of women is primarily negative", and therefore men and women tend to unconsciously believe that women are inferior.

Walesa to work with union

GDANSK, Poland—The outlawed Solidarity trade federation Wednesday reversed a longstanding policy and agreed to work with the government-approved union in an effort to save the Lenin shipyard.

The announcement was made by Lech Walesa, leader of Solidarity, which was founded at the shipyard. He spoke at an outdoor rally attended by nearly all the yard's 10,000 workers on the first working day since the government announced Monday that it will close the shipyard on Dec. 1.

Walesa appeared to rule out a strike for the moment, saying: "That would only make the situation worse."

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was due later today to begin a three-day visit to Poland.

City task force can't agree

EAST ST. LOUIS—Gov. James R. Thompson wants a task force to recommend solutions to the city's financial woes by Dec. 1, but its members are having differences even before their first meeting.

Republican state Rep. Ron Stephens of Troy said an interim commission should take over the cash-starved city's finances, arguing, "If the city is left by itself, it's going to go bankrupt."

"If they don't do anything, there won't be an East St. Louis."

But the chairman of the 24-member panel, the Rev. John Rouse, said he opposes stripping power from elected city officials, comparing it with "letting the Russians control our budget."

"I don't like someone taking the wheel away from me while I'm driving," Rouse said. "I can't say I agree with the idea, but it's worth discussing as are several other ideas."

Dukakis, Bush in good health

WASHINGTON—Doctors for both presidential candidates say they are in excellent health, except for minor conditions not unusual for people of their ages and lifestyles.

Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis suffers an occasional backache made worse by campaign travel. Dr. Gerald Plotkin said. He issued a medical statement on Dukakis' health last September after a routine medical checkup at the Harvard Community Health Plan's Wellesley Center.

The candidate "was found to be in excellent health," Plotkin said.

"Over the last eight to 10 months he has had intermittent, nagging low back discomfort exacerbated by long periods of sitting in airplanes," the doctor said.

Plotkin said then that Dukakis, who will be 55 Thursday, took an occasional anti-inflammatory medication to ease the back pain. Dukakis told the New York Times in an interview published Wednesday that he had an occasional, but no longer bothersome sore back.

Vietnam to turn over remains

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Vietnam will turn over to the United States at least 21 sets of remains that may be those of American missing from the Vietnam War, a U.S. diplomat said Wednesday.

The remains include the two sets that U.S.-Vietnamese teams recovered during last month's unprecedented joint field investigations in northern Vietnam, said Tran Viet Tan, counselor of the Vietnamese Embassy in Bangkok.

Tan said 23 sets would be returned on Thursday, but a U.S.

Embassy official who requested anonymity put the number at 21. Sources said Vietnam has given the United States a list of at least nine names associated with the remains.

A U.S. military team is to receive the remains in a ceremony at Noi Bai Airport in Hanoi, Vietnam's capital. They will be loaded onto a military plane for the flight to Honolulu, where an Army laboratory tries to confirm the preliminary analyses done by the Vietnamese.

Thursday's return would be among the largest since January 1973 Paris Peace accords. The United States has received 196 identified remains of 196 missing personnel, including 168 from Vietnam, 26 from Laos and 2 from China. That leaves 2,000 Americans missing in action in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

In August, 1987, Vietnam's foreign minister, Nguyen Co Thien, and a special U.S. presidential envoy, retired Gen. John Vessey, reached agreement to accelerate cooperation on the MIA issue.

Atlantis moved to launch pad

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Space shuttle Atlantis moved to the launch pad aboard a mammoth caterpillar-tread transporter Wednesday for a late November flight during which it will employ a secret intelligence-gathering satellite for the Pentagon.

Perched vertically atop the transporter, Atlantis moved out of an assembly building into the darkness shortly after 1 a.m., completing the four-mile trip seven hours later at Launch Pad 39B.

The transporter, or crawler, a vehicle with a surface the size of a baseball infield, traveled at a maximum speed of 1 mph.

The move, befitting the classified nature of the mission, was made without the floodlights, music, speeches and cheers of thousands of workers who showed up when Discovery rolled to the pad July 4 for the first shuttle mission since the 1986 Challenger explosion that killed seven astronauts.

Conrad Nagel, Atlantis' processing director, said NASA was aiming for a launch on Nov. 28 or 29. A firm date won't be set until after a flight readiness review on Nov. 10.

Nagel's team began readying Atlantis for its third journey in space in March 1987, making more than 200 modifications to improve the spacecraft's safety and performance.

"We are simply clean as far as any technical problems," he told reporters Wednesday.

The shuttle will be manned by a crew of five, headed by NASA Cmdr. Robert Gibson. The others are Air Force Lt. Col. G. Gardner, Air Force Lt. Col. J. Ross, Air Force Col. Richard Mullane and Navy Cmdr. William Shepherd.

$5 million bail posted for Marcos

NEW YORK (AP)—Tobacco heiress Doris Duke will put up the $5 million bail Imelda Marcos needs to return to Hawaii and her husband, deposed Philippine president Ferdinand Marcos, a lawyer said today.

Donald Robinson, attorney for Miss Duke, said she would post more than $5 million in municipal bonds to secure the bail of Mrs. Marcos, who is charged along with her husband with looting their homeland of more than $100 million.

"It was Miss Duke's idea to help," Robinson said after a hearing before U.S. District Judge John Keenan. Mrs. Marcos made the trip to New York from the couple's home in exile aboard Miss Duke's lavishly-appointed private jet.

"She believes Mrs. Marcos is innocent," said Robinson, adding that Mrs. Marcos would be free to return home once the bonds are posted, possibly Wednesday.

Mrs. Marcos, who has been staying in an $1,800-a-day suite at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, did not attend the court session.

Mrs. Marcos, 59, had been barred by Keenan from returning to her ailing husband and their home in Hawaii, where the couple have lived since their ouster in a popular uprising in 1986, until bail was settled.

Marcos, 71, remained in Hawaii. Defense attorneys argued last week that he was too frail to make the 10-hour flight. Keenan postponed Marcos' pending arraignment pending an examination by a government physician.

Robinson said the 75-year-old Miss Duke and Mrs. Marcos were "close personal friends. They talk frequently."

The Marcoses are charged with racketeering, accused of plundering $103 million from the Philippines treasury, funneling it to foreign bank accounts and using it to buy prime New York City real estate and art.

Health instructor warns of harmful tobacco use

By RENAE ENGLISH
Staff writer

College students, who make up 12 percent of the 22 million smokers, sometimes use types of tobacco that are more harmful than cigarettes.

That's what Kathy Doyle, associate professor of health studies, told a crowd of 75 people during a smokeless tobacco seminar Wednesday in the Union addition Arcola-Buscola room.

"The biggest misconception about smokeless tobacco is that people think it is not dangerous and it is," Doyle said.

Smokeless tobacco has been around for a long time, even before smoking, but not until 1964 did it gain popularity, Doyle said.

When the Surgeon General began reporting that smoking was dangerous for your health, usage went up to an estimated 12 million users.

College students make up 12 percent of the users while 10 to 30 percent are high school students, Doyle said.

Types of smokeless tobacco include chewing tobacco and snuff. Chewing tobacco is loose cut, while snuff is a powdered fine cut.

Doyle added "powdered sugar is mixed with the tobacco to improve flavor."

Premier, a smokeless cigarette, is banned from the shelves

CHICAGO (AP)—The nation's largest and most powerful medical association sought to halt distribution of a "smokeless cigarette" on Wednesday, saying it is a "new, hazardous" drug that needs further testing before it is marketed.

The American Medical Association contended in legal petitions filed in Arizona and Missouri where the product is being test marketed that the smokeless cigarettes should be removed from shelves until it is judged "safe for human consumption."

The product, dubbed "Premier" by manufacturer R.J. Reynolds Co., contains nicotine, an "addictive drug ... which has been implicated in cardiovascular disease, complications of hypertension," and other medical problems, the AMA said.

"The scientific evidence is crystal clear about the adverse health effects of nicotine and carbon monoxide," Dr. Roy Schwarz of the AMA said at a news conference.

"Premier is a cigarette ... not a drug-delivery system, as the AMA has alleged," R.J. Reynolds said in a news release.

"Premier smoke substantially reduces many of the chemical compounds that the critics of smoking have been complaining about," the release said. "Reynolds finds it difficult to understand how the AMA can in good faith suggest that premier be banned."

The petitions, filed with the Arizona Board of Pharmacy and the Missouri Department of Health, maintain Premier "is a new drug that is being sold ... without prior regulatory approval."

By law, the states must respond to the petitions, though neither has yet done so, said AMA attorney Michael Zarski. The states would be required to attain a court injunction, if they decide the product should be pulled, he said.

gens, sweeteners, salts, abrasives and other chemicals.

Nicotine, the addictive element, is a stimulant, and contains much more than cigarettes, making it much harder to quit, Doyle said.

Marketing tactics appeal to the general population, so users are now not only men, but women as well, Doyle said. A common theme in advertising is the ease of use because snuff allows hands to be free while smoking does not.

Another ploy used, Doyle said, is the argument that snuff is a safe alternative to smoking, while in fact it has a higher level of cancer than anything put in the mouth.

Snuff can also causes oral cancer, Doyle said.

Quitting sounds like the perfect solution, but it is very hard to quit, the body begins to rely on the nicotine stimulant, Doyle said.

Doyle's suggestions for quitting are as follows: develop substitute habits, begin a support system of friends, roommates and family, cut down the amount of times used each day and avoid high-risk situations that may make you need the extra help.

By CATHY PODWOJSKI
Government editor

Students running for a seat on Student Senate can let the student body know what they stand for at a forum that the student senate speaker, a candidate herself, calls a "tradition" at Eastern.

The candidates' forum, which will be 7 p.m. Thursday in the Coleman Hall auditorium, will give all 32 candidates a chance to speak and, if time allows, answer questions, senate member Bill Golden said.

"We have one every year for every election," said Golden, who is also the elections committee chair.

The participating candidates will speak by district in the order their names appear on the ballot, which was chosen at the Oct. 26 senate meeting. If the candidate does not speak when he is first called, he loses his opportunity to speak, Golden said.

"The candidates can speak on anything they've done, their goals, or if they have a mini-platform," Golden said.

Candidates from the off-campus and residence hall districts will have three minutes to speak and answer questions from the audience, while candidates from the at-large district will have five minutes to speak and answer the audience's questions.

Golden said he didn't know which district's candidates would speak first, but he would probably save the at-large district for last because of the extra length of time they have to speak.

The at-large residents speak for a longer amount of time because of the guidelines that were set by previous senate members, Golden said.

"They represent a bigger field; on-campus and off-campus together," Golden added.

Golden said he's not sure what type of interest the student body will show in the forum, but he's hoping to see a lot of people show up for the event, which is free of charge to everyone.

"I think it gives everybody an opportunity to know who they're voting for," Student Senate Speaker Jane Clark. "It helps put faces to the people." Clark said she is planning to participate in the forum.

Golden, who participated in the forum when he was a candidate, said he is expecting a big turnout from the candidates, at least 25 if not all 32 of the students running.

"It let me get my name around to the students," Golden said. "I'm looking forward to a very good forum, a lot of information for the people."

Charles Franzen, who is running for senate for the first time as a member of the Advance Team, said he thinks the forum will help bind his party together.

"I'm going to try to get across my points of importance, what I want to do for senate," Marcy Sweatman, who is running for a seat after petitioning on this fall, said. Sweatman is a member of the Victory Party.

"I'm really glad to see we have people interested in senate and the forum," Golden said. "I think senate is a positive aspect of the campus."

AB to tour News

By DAWN SMITH
Staff writer

In an effort to familiarize the 11 Apportionment Board members, most of which are new this year, with Student Publications, AB will take a tour of publications Thursday in place of the regular meeting, Tim Gorman said.

Gorman, the financial vice president, is the head of AB, which is responsible for financing and allocating funds to several organizations on campus.

Student publications has become one of the more complex organizations that AB supports, and it's important for each member to become familiar with the operations and equipment down there, AB member David Hering said.

"The student publication's budget is so much larger than the other organizations that it (tour) gives the members a good idea of what we will be approving money for," Hering said.

The computer systems are a big part of their budget, Hering added.

Gorman said AB made the tour last year and found it to be beneficial when making up this year's budget.

"It's really an impressive and extensive process," Gorman said. "It's good for the individual members for when budgeting time comes around."

AB, Gorman said, has not toured any other organizations, that they support because their budgets aren't as complicated.

Education needs more federal funds

If there is a single issue the next U.S. president needs to address, it is re-evaluating and restructuring the American educational system.

Although both candidates have declared education a top election issue, whether they will act on their promises remains to be seen. During the Reagan administration, education suffered on all levels as America watched the relentless slashing of federal aid to public schools and higher education.

Since 1985, the amount of revenue public higher education institutions received from federal government appropriations has been about 0.1 percent.

Including Pell Grants, about 15 percent of total revenues to higher education come from federal sources, either through direct appropriations grants and contracts or Pell Grant.

With inadequate funding at the federal level, the majority of funding for higher education is dumped on state and local governments. According to 1985 figures, more than 68 percent of all revenues for higher education institutions came from either state and local appropriations (39.6 percent) or tuition and fees paid by students (29 percent).

Eastern students have experienced the inadequacy of state and federal funding throughout the past 12 months, most significantly, through two consecutive tuition increases.

Last year, Gov. James R. Thompson cut $170 million out of the state education budget after the state legislature rejected a tax increase for the spring of 1988.

As a result of inadequate funding, teachers' salaries were frozen, faculty staffs were cut, classes were expanded and a $95 mid-year tuition hike was approved.

And just after the Board of Governors approved another $120 increase in October, Eastern President Stan Rives maintains that unless the state can provide more funding to Eastern, the university will experience a gradual downsize over the next five years.

We can not expect the state of Illinois to single-handedly fund all levels of education in Illinois. To maintain the United States' status in the world market, to combat illiteracy nationwide and to provide a solid educational system nationwide, the federal government needs to drop a few more dollars into the educational pot.

We hope Michael Dukakis and George Bush realize that.

Immaturity running rampant on campus

Consideration. According to the dictionary, consideration is "a thoughtful or sympathetic regard for others." So why is it that I keep seeing so many inconsiderate things on this campus?

For example, I came out of my apartment building last Friday ready to greet the world. But my hopes of having a happy Friday were dashed when I found someone threw an egg at my windshield during the night. At this point it had congealed to a point that it could only be scraped off with an ice scraper.

But I am not the only one to have my car assaulted by pranksters. A friend of mine informed me that someone was kind enough to pour Ivory dishsoap on his windshield. But that wasn't enough. The prankster lathered the soap up really well before leaving it to dry.

Another friend came home from work at 3 a.m. one morning during the week prior to Homecoming Weekend last year. He had left his driving lights on and someone decided to turn them off by kicking them in.

However, this person wasn't satisfied with that and decided to generously pour beer all over the windshield and fender. But the coup de grace was when he felt he had to kick the grill in too.

Donelle Pardee

Overall, my friend spent about $100 fixing everything himself. If he had to take it someplace for repair work, it would have cost him more than monthly rent.

The campus police recently reported someone shaking one of the light posts outside of Pembroke Hall causing the light globe to fall and break.

That little piece of fun will cost the university $100. The university will also have to shell out another $50 to replace a window in the greenhouse. Someone became creative with a rock and threw it at the window.

And students are wondering why the university needs all the money it's asking for.

I could go on and on about all the vandalism that occurs here on campus, but there just isn't enough space.

All this goes to show is that inconsideration and immaturity seem to be running rampant on Eastern's campus. Unfortunately, the acts of a few eventually greatly affect the entire student body.

Considering all the cars and campus property is purposely damaged by college students, it makes me wonder about the maturity level here at Eastern.

I don't know why, but I always thought college students were supposed to be adults. I mean a lot of them whine about not being treated as such. I think they would at least act like adults and earn the respect most adults are given.

I guess I was wrong.

Family impressed by haunted house

Editor:

On Oct. 27 my wife and I took our son to the Thomas Hall Haunted House. We were immediately impressed with the obvious amount of hard work that had gone into setting up the facility. We were also impressed with the terrific enthusiasm and good humor shown by the actors inside the haunted house.

The purpose of this letter is not, however, to merely congratulate you all on the professionalism we saw on Thursday night. It is instead my purpose to thank all of you for the consideration shown to our 3-year-old son that night.

When we first arrived in the basement of Thomas, members of your staff went ahead of us to alert the actors of the presence of a child. The actors then went out of their way to reassure and comfort our son during our visit. They talked to him, showed him their make-up, and allowed him to touch the "tools of their trade" while letting him get a good taste of the spirit of the season. Because of your consideration my family's evening was a tremendous success. Instead of being too frightened to enjoy the haunted house, my son thoroughly enjoyed the experience and is already talking about next year's visit.

Please accept, and extend to the entire crew and staff, our respect and admiration for an excellent haunted house as well as our sincere thanks for your kindness and consideration.

Other elements hinder tax hike

Editor:

There are a few elements we might keep in mind as we lobby for a tax increase to support EIU and other public schools.

1. There is a counter-lobby of independent schools who suffer as the differential increases between them and public schools. These schools have some influential advocates, and they became active some time ago when they saw public school advocates as attacking them.

2. A few years ago Gov. Thompson, while at Eastern, pointed out the relationship between more funding and alcohol consumption by students; but his point was generally ignored. If Eastern is going to keep its reputation as a beer-guzzling school, maybe The Daily Eastern News can establish a fund with the revenue from its beer ads.

3. We ought to keep in mind that there are today many taxpayers who are determined to have no more tax increases of any kind for any purpose. For them, more funding for EIU has to come out of funds presently spent on corrupt patronage, Chicago stadiums, etc.

4. The rest of Illinois will always be hostage to an illiterate Chicago system dragging the whole state down to its level.

Good luck!

Students active in Amnesty action

Editor:

This year marks the 40th anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. For the past week, EIU's chapter of Amnesty International has been collecting signatures in support of a declaration. These signatures will be sent to the United Nations on Dec. 10, International Human Rights Day — to support the adoption of this declaration by every country in the world. We have been collecting signatures to free four political prisoners, one each from Bulgaria, Turkey, Ghana and Russia. These signatures will be sent to each of the country presidents. I'd like to thank all those people who signed for taking time to support us.

Amnesty International is an independent worldwide movement working impartially for the release of all prisoners of conscience; fair and prompt trials for political prisoners; and an end to torture and executions. Anyone interested in becoming a member of Amnesty International can check the Campus Clips for meeting times. Thank you again for your support.

CAA to continue discussion on course revisions

Eastern's Council on Academic Affairs will continue its discussion of admission standards and consider several course revisions at a 2 p.m. meeting Thursday in the Union addition Arcola/Tuscola Room.

CAA member Dave Buchanan will present modified versions of the undergraduate admission policies contained in the study of undergraduate education, while CAA member Kathleen Shank will present new admission policies for the council's consideration.

Samuel Taber, dean of student services, will also continue his presentation of separate admission policies for transfer students.

In other business, CAA Chair Terry Weidner said the council will continue discussion on several course outline revisions. HEC 3151, "Nutrition Education" and HEC 4751, "Diet Therapy" are the two courses being examined for revisions. Weidner also said the council must consider a proposal from the home economics department to revise the curriculum if the course revisions are approved.

New proposals before the CAA this week include: ECN 1999 "Principles of Macroeconomics", advanced placement credit in foreign languages, revision of political science major, revisions of medical technology major including modification of the catalog description.

RHA planning for regional conference

Many members of the Residence Hall Association (RHA) are making plans to attend the annual Great Lakes Affiliation of College and University Residence Halls (GLACURH) conference to be held Nov. 1-13 at the University of Illinois in Champaign, Urbana.

RHA will be discussing details for the workshop, which will place emphasis on leadership and motivation skills, at the RHA meeting Thursday at 5 p.m. in Pemberton Hall, RHA President Debbie English said.

Eastern will be represented at the GLACURH conference by 12 RHA members who will be attending seminars on programming, self awareness and time management, English added.

"We'll be sharing ideas and presenting ideas (at the conference)," Tyra Ringsrud, who will attend the conference, said. "We'll be promoting Eastern's spirit."

In other business, RHA members will be updated on plans for a talent show, which will be held on Nov. 21.

UB chair strives to provide good entertainment

By WENDY NICHOLS and LORI A. WAX
Staff writers

University Board Chair Janelle Limper is the driving force behind the UB, which is the student programming board for Eastern's campus.

Limper said the board tries to provide the best entertainment they can at the lowest possible cost to students.

She heads the UB meetings, which encompass all committees. "I'm familiar with all the committees. I make sure everything is running smoothly and everybody is doing what they're supposed to," said Limper, a junior English major with a speech communications minor.

The UB committees are as follows: concerts, crazy daze/homecoming, graphics, human potential, lectures, mainstage, movies, performing arts, productions, public relations, special events, Subway and video tape.

"I'm the spokesperson for the board at other functions with the university because sometimes the administration needs to meet with us for various reasons," Limper said.

She added, "anyone who has the desire to participate can join the UB."

"There can never be enough. The more people that want to be involved the better," she said.

"We have a recruitment night twice a year. Committees are formed by people who are interested in them," Limper said. She said coordinators head the committees.

"When a position is open for a coordinator, it is made known to the campus and anyone can run," Limper added. She said the coordinators, along with the vice chair, vote on such matters as how to spend money and what shows to get. Limper said she is not allowed to vote and it is her job to remain objective.

Limper encourages all interested students to call the activities office or to stop by.

"I've been involved with UB and on committees since my freshman year," Limper said.

Limper wanted to be involved so "I applied for performing arts coordinator my sophomore year."

"Each year chair and vice chair elections are held. It seemed interesting to me to head the whole organization," Limper said, explaining her reason for seeking the chair position.

Limper admitted that being on the committees can be time consuming. "Being a coordinator takes a little time and then what Karol (Klingel, vice chair) and I do takes even more time because we have to be able to service everyone," she said.

Although she will not be allowed to run for chair again, she plans to serve on the committees next year. UB allows only one year for each chair.

Limper works on the UB approximately 12-15 hours per week and although she does not get paid she says it is worth it. "You gain experience working with professionals and other students. I believe it will help me later on in life with working with others and my field," she said.

Despite Limper's hectic schedule she still insists on taking time out for herself. "I have to or I'll go crazy. I walk five miles everyday and I play the piano every once in a while," she said.

Limper's dedication and hard work must be paying off, according to other UB members.

UB vice-chair Karol Klingel said "no one could do better."

"She's done an effective job," said Todd Jones, productions coordinator.

"I think she's doing a wonderful job, performing arts coordinator Melissa Boehm said. She helps out with all the committees. All the bases are covered all the time. We haven't had any major problems since she's been chairman," she added.

Subway coordinator Theresa Sabota said "she's doing a great job. She works very well with the coordinators. There are so many things she has to do and she handles them all very well."

Christmas break opens job opportunities for minority students

By MIKE SPRINCZ
Staff writer

Minority students will have the unique opportunity to find a summer job, internship, co-ops or full-time employment during their Christmas break at DePaul University in Chicago.

The "All University Minority Career Experience" is scheduled to take place from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Jan. 4 at DePaul University's Alumni Hall.

Don Schaefer, assistant director of Eastern's placement center, said "the program is sponsored by DePaul and Illinois State University and it is for minorities."

He added, "Sophomores, juniors and seniors can attend. There are companies in need of extra help and students can obtain additional job information about their future career choice."

Students must send a resume and a $4 fee by Dec. 2 to John Bradarich, DePaul University, E. Jackson Blvd., Chicago, 60604.

Registration for the program will be from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. in the Alumni Hall, 1101 Belden Chicago. Students will then be interviewed by any of the 80 representatives present between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Some of the other purposes of the program for students who are looking for summer experience are to assist the student financially or through work experience, Schaefer said.

Companies also have the opportunity to be in contact with students earlier in their college careers and students have an opportunity to talk to representatives about employer expectations, Schaefer said, adding, "It is informational for minorities because they can make good contacts for jobs and possibly land a job."

ELU home economics instructor receives award for leadership

By TONYA L. ADAMS
Staff writer

Home economics is the branch of human services that has sometimes been thought of as basically learning to cook, clean and sew.

However, home economics is a broad field offering study in a variety of areas including: nutritional needs, hotel and motel management and merchandising of goods.

Aside from the broad field of study there are dedicated faculty members to teach and run the department.

One person who has been instrumental in home economics is Joyce Crouse, who is a 1988 recipient of an American Home Economics Association Leader Award.

Crouse who has been teaching for 34 years, 20 of those years at Eastern, has received a bachelor's degree, a master's degree and a Ph.D in home economics education from Southern Illinois University.

Her main areas of study were in philosophy, social anthropology and she conducted post-graduate work in gerontology, the study of aging.

Crouse, a married mother of five, is from Crossville, Ill., a small town 100 miles south of Charleston.

Crouse became interested in home economics from her high school home economics teacher.

"My teacher showed a film on nutrition and feeding the family. I wanted to know those things for my family one day. Staying home raising a family back then was thought as the thing to do," Crouse said.

She added, "My teacher taught me to examine ideas and values. She taught me to think about behavior and analyze consequences before they happened. She (her teacher) had influence on people's lives; I wanted to be like her."

Crouse is the first home economics faculty member at Eastern to be awarded the American Home Economics Association's plaque and pin. She was nominated for her leadership in the field of home economics and for her service to the profession.

Crouse has devoted a lot of time to gerontology, doing extensive work with local senior citizens. She said since a great portion of our population is aging the needs and care for the older people are important.

"I have done lots of things that have set precedence and policy for older people," Crouse said.

Indeed it was a great honor winning the award, Crouse said. She said she was "stunned" when she received the call from Washington informing her of the award.

However, she added it was a greater honor because of the recognition and attention the award brought to Eastern and to the home economics department.

Crouse said she really enjoys teaching, and what pleases her is watching students accomplish things they never expected they could accomplish.

"Seeing progress, having opportunities to work with professors, seeing things happen that's exciting."

Going once, twice, three times . . . the Sears Tower

CHICAGO (AP) - Who wants to buy the Sears Tower? Not me, says Donald Trump. Not us, say the Japanese. Count us out, says JMB Realty Corp., Chicago-based owner of Water Tower Place, the city's glitzy downtown shopping center. But local real-estate auctioneer Joel Zegart believes they'll be among the bidders if Sears, Roebuck and Co. buys his proposal to hold a public auction for the world's tallest building. "I think it's a smokescreen," Zegart, president of JBS & Associates Inc., said Wednesday of the many denials among those seem as the most likely bidders for the 110-story headquarters of the nation's largest retailer. "I think a lot of people are interested and they're just not showing their cards yet." Sears announced Monday it would sell its famed skyscraper as part of a corporate restructuring designed to boost profits. Sears spokesman Douglas Fairweather said the company had received a "number of inquiries" following its announcement, but he wouldn't reveal the identities of the interested parties. Nor would Fairweather comment on the auction idea. "I don't want to laugh on the record," he said. Fairweather said the sale, which is being handled by Goldman, Sachs & Co. in conjunction with Sears' own Coldwell Banker real-estate and Dean Witter Reynolds financial units, would be negotiated privately with selected prospective buyers who would be invited to submit bids. But Zegart, whose firm specializes in auctions of large investment properties, said a public auction open to all would generate tremendous interest and result in a sale at the highest price Sears would hope to receive. He said he would start the bidding at $800 million. Analysts say the building could fetch as much as $1.8 billion. Zegart, comparing the one-of-a-kind Sears Tower to the Mona Lisa, said an auction of the building could be as lucrative as the 1987 auction of Van Gogh's "Sunflowers" was to the seller in that case.

Dukakis slams Republicans

CHICAGO (AP) Democrat Michael Dukakis slammed Republicans George Bush and Dan Quayle as sorry candidates to lead a war against drugs; and warned drug-producing countries that "if you're against us, don't expect a dime of American foreign aid." Unleashing some of his harshest campaign rhetoric veteran Dukakis criticized the vice president for saying Tuesday he would not necessarily halt aid to nations that refuse to cooperate with U.S. anti-drug efforts. "Mike Dukakis will. You can depend on that," the Democratic presidential nominee told about 10,000 people at a rally in Chicago's Daley Plaza. "That's an important difference in this election and will make a very important difference in the lives of our children and grandchildren," he said. "I'll work with other countries, but I'll be damned if I will allow those countries to send their poison into the United States of America. Maybe (Bush) thinks there are other things more important than the future of our children... I say you have to draw the line somewhere." Chicago was the second stop on a three-stage campaign tour Wednesday that began in Minneapolis, where Dukakis' wife, Kitty, is hospitalized. The day was ending with appearances in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, where the Democratic nominee was to join the Rev. Jesse Jackson for a get-out-the-vote rally. During the primary campaign, Dukakis said he would refuse to give foreign aid to any country involved in producing or trafficking in illicit drugs unless they cooperated fully with the U.S. campaign to stamp out the drug trade. The same policy is reflected in federal law, but Dukakis and congressional Democrats have criticized President Reagan for certifying Panama and other suspect countries as eligible for foreign aid.

Rish accused of 'gold digging'

KANKAKEE (AP) - Nancy Rish is a "gold digger" who helped her boyfriend abduct businessman Stephen Small and bury him alive because she wanted "the big score," a $1 million ransom, a prosecutor told jurors Wednesday. Ms. Rish and Daniel Edwards never intended Small to escape alive from the homemade wooden coffin he was buried in, said Frank Nowicki, an assistant Illinois attorney general, in closing statements. "You have before you the finest example you'll ever see if a gold digger who'll do anything for money." Nowicki told jurors after eight days of testimony. Small, 40, a member of a prominent media family and great-grandson of a former Illinois governor, was abducted on Sept. 2, 1987, and suffocated in the box before kidnappers collected the $1 million ransom sought. His body was unearthed at the remote site two days later. Edwards, 31, who shared a home with Ms. Rish in nearby Bourbonnais, was convicted of kidnapping and murder in May and sentenced to die. The prosecution is not seeking the death penalty for Ms. Rish, who was charged with the same crimes. "The defense in this case has painted a picture for you...of this woman as an ostrich who had her head in the sand," said Nowicki. "Nothing in this world could be further from the truth." Nowicki reminded the jury of a series of lies Ms. Rish admitted telling police after she and Edwards were arrested Sept. 4, 1987.

Ditka suffers heart attack

Coach likely to be hospitalized for 1 week

LAKE FOREST (AP)—Fiery tempered Chicago Bears coach Mike Ditka suffered a mild heart attack Wednesday after his daily workout at the team's training camp and was hospitalized in serious condition, doctors said.

The 49-year-old Ditka was alert and conscious and being treated at the intensive care unit of Lake Forest Hospital, said Dr. Jay Alexander, a staff cardiologist. Ditka's wife, Diana, was at the hospital with him.

Alexander said he expected Ditka would recover completely, "barring anything unforeseen."

Ditka was given medicine for a blocked artery and Alexander said the coach would require hospitalization for at least a week while doctors determined the extent of the blockage.

"It's too soon to say when he will be back and resuming his duties," Alexander said. "He suggested 48 hours."

Bears President Mike McCaskey, who visited Ditka at the hospital, described the coach as being in good spirits and even joking that he had planned to visit a friend Wednesday at the hospital anyway.

And in keeping with his reputation for being headstrong--both as a National Football League coach and player--McCaskey said Ditka resisted the first attempts by his assistant coaches to get medical attention.

"He felt a little rueful about all this. He was beginning to realize that there was a good reason to be brought to the hospital. He was remarking how life takes some amazing turns," McCaskey recalled.

Club spokesman Bryan Harlan said Ditka was getting dressed to make a brief appearance at a rally for George Bush at Stevenson High School in nearby Prairie View when he suffered chest pains.

Assistant coach Johnny Roland said Ditka had suffered similar pains Monday, but apparently did nothing about them.

Roland said he, assistant coach Steve Kazor and scout Ken Geiper finally convinced Ditka to seek help, then drove him to the hospital about 8:30 a.m.

McCasky joked later, "I know one of the reasons that he did not want to go to the hospital is that he wanted to introduce Vice-President Bush very badly."

Ditka has spent 27 years in pro football, and was accorded the game's highest honor by being inducted into the NFL Hall of Fame earlier this year.

Ditka began his professional career as a tight end with the Bears in 1961, when he was named rookie of the year. He went on to win selection to the next five Pro Bowls.

Ditka was traded to the Philadelphia Eagles in 1967 and then to the Dallas Cowboys, where he finished his playing career after 12 years.

The native of Aliquippa, Pa., began his coaching career with the Cowboys and stayed there nine years before being named head coach of the Bears in 1982.

He led the Bears to the Super Bowl in 1985 and entered this season with a 61-27 mark.

the second half when Redbird Klaus Filbry missed a penalty shot that would have put the Redbirds ahead by a goal.

But with 13:51 remaining in the game, ISU's Keith Holmes deflated the Panthers' hopes with an unassisted goal, putting Illinois State ahead for good 2-1.

The Panthers, however, did have one last hope.

With one minute remaining in the game, senior forward Mark Noffert was taken down by an ISU player, and the Panthers were awarded a free kick. But the shot taken by junior midfielder David Kompare did not penetrate the goal, and the Panthers were denied a chance for overtime.

The Panthers fall to 10-5-3 with the loss, while the Redbirds move to 12-7. The Redbirds were previously ranked at No. 6 in the Midwest Region.

"They showed today that they were the better team," Panthers coach Cizo Mosnia said. "They wanted it more than we did."

This is the second consecutive season that the Panthers have finished one game shy of the NCAA playoffs by losing in their second-to-last game.

Last season, the Panthers traveled to St. Louis to face the Billikens in a winner-take-all showdown for entrance into the playoffs. The Panthers lost that game 1-0.

This season, the loss occurred at the Panthers' home field, where they had once been dominant.

The Panthers, once owners of a 14-game home undefeated string, have now lost their last three home games.

"I don't understand it. Normally we're quite successful at home," Mosnia said.

The Panthers played well in the first half of the season, when they played most of their games on the road, yet have struggled in the second half, mostly at home.

The Panthers were 6-1-3 in the first half of the season, but following the Governor's Cup tournament, in which the Panthers finished third, the Panthers have had a record of 4-4.

actually a short reception that Taylor turned into a big gainer.

The extra point attempt failed, but the Eagles held a 13-7 lead.

Myers said Taylor "ran down the sideline like a streak."

The two teams went into the half with Rantoul still holding the six-point margin.

The turning point of the game was actually a penalty in the fourth quarter.

On a third-and-10 with the Eagles leading 19-14, Rantoul's Dante Nethery was hit late, resulting in a 15-yard penalty that put the ball on the Charleston 25.

Three plays later, Cannon punched the ball over to put the score at 25-14 with 5:26 left to play. A two-point conversion made the score 27-14.

"That late-hit call was the turning point," Myers said. "Brian (Little) said he never heard the whistle."

Hood said, "the key to the ballgame was when we were up 19-14 and we were able to move the ball effectively."

Although only five minutes remained in the game, these two Class 4A teams were not through scoring.

Jones hit Taylor again for a 16-yard touchdown with 4:16 left.

Charleston followed with a late pass from Royer to Krukewitt for their second key hookup of the night. Unfortunately, it was a case of too little, too late for the Trojans.

The loss overshadowed the efforts of Charleston halfback Ted Trueblood, who ran for 118 yards and one touchdown.

"I don't know of anyone with a better running back than us with Teddy Trueblood, he took a lot of shots out there," Myers said.

Booters' tourney hopes dashed by ISU

By AL LAGATTOLLA
Staff writer

Eastern's soccer team, given a life by being ranked at No. 2 in the nation in the ISAA/Gatorade soccer poll, was drained of its postseason tournament hopes Wednesday afternoon at Lake Forest Field.

The loss all but nails the Panthers' coffin shut on a chance to receive a bid for the NCAA playoffs.

Redbird Steve Lyons started the scoring Wednesday with an unassisted goal off a corner kick with 18 minutes remaining in the first half.

Six minutes later, Eastern forward Mario Mihalic tied it with the assist going to junior forward Garry Laidlaw, who is recovering from pulled groin on both legs.

Laidlaw entered the game before the first Redbirds goal and remained in the game until the game's waning moments.

"When I first came in I tried to spark the team, because they seemed a bit flat," Laidlaw said.

And although Laidlaw could spark the team for the second consecutive home game, the Panthers failed to score after Mihalic's goal.

Trojans bow to Rantoul 33-22

By BILL LOOBY
and AL LAGATTOLLA
Staff writers

Charleston High School lost to Rantoul in the first round of the Illinois High School football playoffs 33-22 Wednesday, ending the Trojans' season with an 8-2 mark.

In a game closer than the score would indicate, Rantoul's tandem of Ron Cannon and Jeff Taylor proved to be the Trojans' undoing.

Taylor scored three touchdowns to pace the Eagles to victory.

Charleston drew first blood after an option pass from fullback Howie Groff to Doug Krukewitt for a 53-yard gain which landed the Trojans on the Rantoul three-yard line.

After a two-yard loss, quarterback Rick Royer hooked up with Lance Tucker to put Charleston up 7-0.

Rantoul answered within the next two minutes with Ron Cannon running 22 yards for the touchdown. Cannon set up the score with an earlier 33-yard sprint.

Rantoul coach Dick Hood said Cannon, who ran for 118 yards and two touchdowns, "ran like a man possessed."

"Cannon is a ton," Charleston coach Verlon Myers said. "They've got him listed at 210, but he looks more like 220 or 225."

Taylor followed Cannon on a 76-yard TD pass from quarterback Deron Jones. The pass was
